I'm at last coming out the "writer's block", I've been toying with the idea of writing this post for some time now. I've seen many articles, youtube videos and even made some of my own and i find it most perplexing how a blog post that's full of my opinion, especially on a particular subject, can seem to be so far removed from everyone else's opinions. To be honest, i've found this to be true with any subject that i talk about on here, and even to be completely honest, i've found that to be true for myself when talking about this subject. We all hold our own set of opinions, it's one of the most beautiful things about being human. There is a massive amount of interesting topics to discuss, it is a shame, and actually a fantastic opportunity that we are forced to miss out on. So let's talk about the subject that we are all interested in, let's talk about writing. Everyone needs a hobby. Just a hobby. I'm no expert on writing, but i think that it can be a very enjoyable hobby to get into, especially if you like music. I have a hard time with musical notation but i am beginning to find a good balance of taking a few pointers to help me get there. I am fortunate enough to be surrounded by a large community of singers, artists and musicians and the more i listen to them, the more i find myself intrigued with the subject. I have found some really helpful youtube videos that i can't recommend enough for anyone who is interested in learning how to sing or play an instrument, they have a ton of great information on every level of every type of music. I'm sure that I have missed a few great videos and I' 82157476af
